Washington, DC Representative

NOVEMBER 6, SATURDAY
11AM - 3PM @ WLH 002

- * What it means to be an APA Feminist, Activist, and Leader at Yale
- * What it means to be a part of an APA women's movement
- * How to get involved and support the economic, social and political empowerment of APA women and girls

Christina Lagdameo is committed to the social, economic, and political empowerment of people of color, especially of Asian Pacific Americans, women and girls. While attending the University of Maryland, she pressured the administration to establish the first Asian American Studies Program in the DC metropolitan area and she later received one of the first UM AA Studies Certificates. She is a Public Policy and International Affairs Fellow and received her Masters in Urban Policy from the New School for Social Research in New York City. Presently, Christina works on welfare programs in the White House Office of Management and Budget; and she completed a project at the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris, France. Outside of work, Christina chaired the NAPAWF DC chapter and is now a member of NAPAWF's National Board.
