

The MacMillan Center
Fox International Fellowship Program
For Yale University graduate and professional students
Fall 2008, Spring 2009, or the 2008-09 Academic Year
Deadline: 4:00p.m., Friday, February 22, 2008

The Whitney and Betty MacMillan Center for International and Area Studies at Yale announces the availability of research fellowships through exchanges with the Free University of Berlin, Cambridge University, El Colegio de Mexico, Fudan University in Shanghai, Moscow State University, Sciences Po University in Paris, the University of Tokyo, Jawaharlal Nehru University in Delhi, University of Cape Town, Bogazici University in Istanbul, and Tel Aviv University for the 2008-2009 academic year. The objective of the Fox International Fellowship Program is to identify and help develop potential world-class statesmen and women who may participate in guiding the world toward a peaceful order in the 21st century.

The exchange is made possible by the generosity of Joseph Carrere Fox ('38) and his wife, Alison Barbour Fox, whose commitment to encouraging better understanding between the US and other countries led them to offer support for exchanges between Yale and leading universities worldwide. The Fellowships will support one semester or one academic year of research on topics involving economics, political science, international relations, law, business and finance, management, environmental policy, or contemporary history. A Fox International Fellow's research should be a serious, scholarly contribution to their chosen field. At the same time, Fox International Fellows should have the kind of maturity and skills which demonstrate leadership potential. The Fellowship award will cover the recipient's round-trip travel, and provide a stipend for basic living expenses while in residence at the selected University. Support for research-related travel to other cities or institutions may be provided in direct support of the research project. The exact amount of the stipend will be adjusted to supplement resources from personal or other sources available to the Fox Fellow.

ALL APPLICANTS must REGISTER through the Yale Student Grants and Fellowships Database. See <http://studentgrants.yale.edu/assistance/registering.asp>.

General Application Guidelines

1. Proposed research must focus on a topic related to economics, political science, international relations, law, business and finance, management, environmental policy, or contemporary history. Students in doctoral programs shall normally have finished their course work. Students in masters or graduate professional programs shall have administrative approval to interrupt their course work. Graduating graduate students are eligible to apply.
2. Fox International Fellows are selected on the basis of character, intellect, and demonstrated leadership. Students must demonstrate a personal commitment to being a "citizen ambassador."
3. Priority will be given to research projects of longer duration that will enable students to fully benefit from and contribute to the international exchange by developing a strong network of colleagues and friends.
4. For Berlin, Paris, Mexico, Moscow, Shanghai, Istanbul, and Tokyo, students must demonstrate sufficient language proficiency to complete their research program and to engage in the larger intellectual and social communities of their host university. For Cape Town, candidates with evidence of interest in and familiarity with isiXhosa/IsiZulu or Afrikaans may have some competitive advantage in the selection process, however students without these skills are welcome to apply.

The attached application/nomination form must be completed and returned to: The MacMillan Center, Room 306, Luce Hall, 34 Hillhouse Avenue, P. O. Box 208206, New Haven, CT 06520-8206, no later than 4:00 p.m. Friday, February 22, 2008. Applicants may be asked to come in for an interview. Notifications of awards will be made by May 1, 2008 at the latest.

APPLICATIONS FROM INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS PROPOSING RESEARCH PROJECTS IN THEIR COUNTRY OF ORIGIN ARE NOT ELIGIBLE.

It is the applicant's responsibility to see that the complete application, including the 2 letters of recommendation and transcript, arrive by the deadline.
