

Announcement of
The MacMillan Center
Stavros S. Niarchos Faculty Research Grants for 2008-2009
in Hellenic Studies

Deadline for Applications: Friday, March 7, 2008

The Hellenic Studies Program announces the availability of faculty research grants for research on projects within its scope of activity. Research grants are awarded for studies that will increase understanding of post-antiquity Greece; for problem-oriented and comparative studies within modern Greece and between Greece and its neighbors; and for studies on Greece in an international perspective. Applications will be reviewed by a committee, chaired by the co-Directors of Hellenic Studies and consisting of selected faculty members affiliated with the MacMillan Center.

Applicants will be notified, in writing, by Friday, April 18, 2008.

General Principles Governing Awards

1. An application may be submitted jointly by several members of the faculty who wish to collaborate on a larger project or research program.
2. All applicants are urged to also try to obtain outside funding. The MacMillan Center faculty research grant applications/awards may be used to supplement such other grants. Total budgets should be shown.
3. No awards will be made for equipment purchases, to subsidize publications, or to cover travel and expenses for attendance and participation at professional meetings, or for purposes of general study or course preparation.
4. Funds cannot be used to raise the salaries of recipients of Senior Faculty Fellowships to their academic year levels, nor will funds be available for faculty summer stipends, or for leaves of absence without pay.

A completed application should include:

1. the attached cover sheet
2. project description (2 pages)
3. total budget break-down and a schedule of activities
4. curriculum vitae including bibliography, checking (✓) items relevant to proposed study
5. one faculty reference letter from a faculty member knowledgeable about your subject of study.

Complete applications, including reference letters, are due Friday, March 7, 2008 to:
