

DHL will no longer ship domestic shipments after January 30, 2009

DHL will no longer be engaged in domestic shipping after today, January 30, 2009. However, all international shipments to and from the U.S. will still be delivered.

DHL's U.S. Express business will focus entirely on its international offerings and will discontinue its domestic-only air and ground services.

If you are an Accuship user and currently utilize DHL's domestic services, you will need to consider the other two domestic shipping alternatives: FedEx or UPS.

Yale University Procurement has negotiated excellent pricing with FedEx, and Accuship allows you to comparison shop between FedEx and UPS based on your shipping location.

To get started with Accuship, you will need to self-register through the Yale START web tool to request access and obtain approval from your Training Access Coordinator (TAC).

- Instructions for self-registration through START

Please direct questions or comments to procurement@yale.edu